

Wizard of Oz

The Wizard of Oz play was a Wonderful play. However, there were parts of the play that I enjoyed more than the rest. For example, when Dorothy walked 'Toto' around the stage. This to me was an extremely enjoyable part of the production, because it added realism to a fictional story.

In addition to this, I liked how the trees were personified, as they threw apples at Dorothy and the Scarecrow. I really liked how the story was interpreted into a play.

As far as the actors go, Dorothy was by far, the best. With her breathtaking voice, and how her personality 'just fit' the role she played.

When it comes to making the play even better, there is little to be done. I have only one suggestion, to close the curtains before changing scenes.

I would highly recommend this play to anyone who has ever heard of the Wizard of Oz story. This truly is a remarkable play that the entire family will enjoy.
